Originally from New York, Ms. Leonard has been practicing architecture since 1987. After moving from Providence, Rhode Island to the Washington Metropolitan area, CRAVER Architects LLC was established in 1993. With experience in commercial, industrial and retail design, Ms. Leonard chose to focus the current practice primarily on residential architecture.

“Designing houses is our most meaningful work. It’s very satisfying to create something beautiful but the real joy comes in knowing we have made living better for someone on a daily basis.”

With offices located in Alexandria, Virginia, the area allows for project types in a variety of styles from historic Old Town Alexandria to the sleek, modern lines of Charles Goodwin’s award-winning community of Hollin Hills. Ms. Leonard is a member of the American Institute of Architects and is a licensed professional in the District of Columbia and the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Works by CRAVER Architects have been featured on the popular HGTV show, Old Homes Restored and are frequently included on the annual Hollin Hills House and Garden Tour. Look for the 2009 publication of a recent renovation project in Sarah Susanka’s upcoming book, Remodeling Not So Big, by Taunton Press.
